5 Jewelry Gifts for the Holidays: Pieces Your Recipients Will Still Be Wearing in 2036

FEATURE IMPACT

The right piece of jewelry adds sparkle to every entrance, every day of the week and every occasion on the calendar.

Here are five worth giving this season from the jewelry experts at Ross-Simons, America's jeweler since 1952.

The Paper Clip Necklace
An easy first step into Italian gold, known for its polished finishes and intricate woven links, this Paper Clip Link Necklace embodies one of today's hottest jewelry trends, and it doesn't need an occasion to justify it. Featuring polished 18-karat yellow gold over sterling silver paper clip links and a toggle clasp, it gracefully drapes the neckline in a modern silhouette that can be paired with other favorites to achieve the popular layered look.

The Huggie Hoops
Cut to sit close to the ear lobe and stay put, these sunny 14-karat yellow gold Huggie Hoop Earrings go in at 7 a.m. and nobody asks why they never come out. Crafted in Italy with a snap-bar closure, the 5/8-inch hoops are perfectly sized for the kind of daily wear that turns an accessory into a signature.

The Emerald Cocktail Ring
A unique 7-carat emerald flashes vivid green at the center of this cocktail ring, trimmed with .10 carats of white topaz on a 5/8-inch-wide band of 14-karat yellow gold over sterling silver. It's meant for the right hand, where the cocktail ring has long made its home, and will get noticed at every holiday party.

The Diamond Tennis Bracelet
Give the gift of A-list sparkle with a Lab-Grown Diamond Tennis Bracelet. Grown in a lab rather than mined, the round brilliant-cut gems are identical in optical, physical and chemical properties. Continues on next page
